DESCRIPTION Established in 2002 the TERA Tehnopolis is a joint-venture of the Josip Juraj Strossmayer University of Osijek, the City of Osijek and the Osijek-Baranja County. The activities of the Centre especially focuses on the development of knowledge-based economy implementing significantly improved technologies (products, services and processing), and the commercialization of publicly funded research conducted by the Josip Juraj Strossmayer University of Osijek and the protection of intellectual property. The centre provides services for business counselling and education, representation in the field of the protection of intellectual property, making prototypes and models with 3-D printing technology and giving lease of office spaces in business incubator TERA for the realization of projects that are based on knowledge. Scientific and development projects are organized and coordinated for the need of industry in coordination with the members of the University of J.J. Strossmayer in Osijek and other relevant institutions. Networking activities of SMEs and institutions supporting entrepreneurship (cluster development) and activities had aim to increase institutional capacity in order to support the establishment and development of new and existing small and medium enterprises. The programme was designed by TERA TEHNOPOLIS experts with an aim to assist entrepreneurs in practicing their knowledge and skills for effective management, as well as to provide an incentive for potential entrepreneurs to establish their own business.
